I'm a fairly intelligent person who has spent nearly 10 years learning mechanics (机械学), but I have no formal education. I have always tried to make people trust me. However, this past year I have finally gotten to where I feel I will probably live a better 15 !

I started out this year having just taken another factory job with slightly 16 pay than my last one. I was making $13.50 an hour at my last job and lived a difficult life.

Three months ago, my neighbors bought a 17 Harley motorcycle (哈雷摩托) that everyone thought had some serious damage (损坏). After taking a look at it, I said I would be able to 18 it. It turned out that I 19 them $2,000 that they expected to pay to rebuild it. They were impressed with my work and told many of their friends about me. I got a lot of new business just 20 word of mouth.

In about two months, I had over a dozen people coming to me for work and I was making good 21. I was making thousands a month on the side on a good month. But due to the instability (不稳定) of the work, I still couldn't leave my day job at that point.

Then I got a job through one of my customers working on heavy equipment and diesel trucks(柴油汽车). I was able to impress them by solving difficult problems 22. They offered me another job that started even higher --$17 an hour. I finally made some progress.

In one year, I went from being the lowest level employee(雇员)to having employers(雇主) invite me to 23 for them. Now I can honestly say I feel truly proud of myself and my 24.

The Formula1 (F1) Chinese Grand Prix 2024 will take place in Shanghai in April. Zhou Guanyu, 24, will be there. He is China's first F1 racer. This will be his first time to race at home. His team is Alfa Romeo.

What makes a great F1 racer?

Body

A good racer must have a good body. Even though racers look still, their bodies are going through hard tests during races. Zhou does a lot of work on his neck. This is because the head and helmet become five times heavier when braking and speeding up, according to the Motorsport Technology website. "You can see my neck getting thicker these years," Zhou told The Paper.

Quick reactions

F1 drivers like Zhou need to react quickly. F1 racers usually react to things in 100 milliseconds, said Motorsport Technology. That is two times faster than normal people. "Racing with the world's top F1 drivers tests not only my driving skills but also my mind and reaction speed," he told Hongxing News.

Cars

Speed is so important for a great racer. Besides driving skills, fast speed comes from the car itself. Zhou had trouble with his car at the Hungarian Grand Prix 2023. But he's ready for the race in April with a new car and better tires(轮胎). He's ready to show his skills!

28. The Formula 1 Chinese Grand Prix 2024 will be special for Zhou Guanyu because_____.

- A. His team will race for the first time.
B. He will race at home for the first time.
C. He will have a new car.
D. He will race with the world's top F1 drivers.

- A. five times heavier B. two times lighter
C. five times lighter D. two times heavier

30. What can be the best title for the passage?

- A. Zhou Guanyu's China's First F1 Race

- B. The Formula 1 (F1) Chinese Grand Prix 2024
 C. Keys to Be an F1 Racer
 D. A Great F1 Racer—— Zhou Guanyu

C

King Uther died. Since he had not left a son, it seemed that there was going to be a bloody fight to see who would be the next King.

Merlin, the great wizard, called a meeting of all the important people in the country to decide how they should choose their King. In the churchyard was a large stone that had not been there before. Stuck into the stone was a large sword, and written on its handle in letters of gold were these words “Whoever can pull this sword out of this stone is the true King.” So all the important people who thought they had any right to be King tried to pull the sword out of the stone, but none of them succeeded. Finally they decided to hold a large fighting competition so that the knights could try each other’s strength and fighting ability.

Sir Ector heard about the competition and came to London, with his two sons Kay and Arthur. Kay hoped to win the competition and became famous. Arthur was just there to help support Kay, and to manage his horse and weapons. But just as they were riding to the competition, Kay realized that he had left his sword at the place where they were staying.” “Go and get it for me, boy!” he said to Arthur — not very politely.

Arthur ran back to the place they were staying, but it was locked — everyone had already gone to see the competition. What could he do? As he was wondering what to do, he looked around and saw the handle of a sword on the other side of a wall. He jumped over the wall and took hold of the sword. Then using his mind to focus his strength as Merlin had taught him to do before, he easily pulled the sword out of the stone.

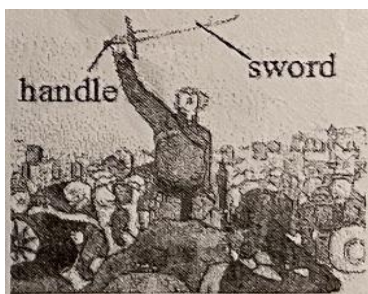

Since he was in a hurry, he did not look at the sword too carefully, but rushed back to give it to Kay. Kay was just going to say “You stupid boy! This isn’t mine! When he noticed the words on the handle, Kay went to his father, Sir Ector, and said, “You see, I have the sword, and that means that I am the true King!”

Sir Ector led both Kay and Arthur back to the place where the sword had been found. Then he called all the important people to come and see what had happened. When they were all there, Sir Ector asked Arthur to put the sword back into the stone. People all tried to pull the sword out of the stone, but no one could. Then Arthur pulled it out as easily as taking candy from a baby. After they had gone through this several times, some people there asked Merlin how this boy could be the true King. Merlin told them Arthur’s story. When they heard it, all of them went down on one knee and promised to help Arthur to become King.

31. What was Kay like according to the story?

- A. Kind and helpful. B. Clever and thoughtful.
 C. Shy and careless. D. Impolite and dishonest.

32. What is the correct order of the following sentences?

- a. Kay and Arthur came to London.
 b. Merlin told Arthur how to focus his strength.
 c. King Uther died.
 d. Kay left his sword at the place they were staying.
 e. The important people decided to hold a competition.

A. c-e-a-d-b

B. b-c-e-a-d

C. b-c-a-e-d

D. c-e-d-b-a

33. What can we infer from the last paragraph?

- A. Merlin supported Kay more.
- B. Sir Ector doubted about Kay's words.
- C. The sword was returned somewhere else.
- D. People would do something against Merlin.

Jack White is a 17-year-old student who has already published a collection of poetry with a local publisher. Jack believes switching (转换) to an all-boys school changed his life.

“When I was at my mixed school, poetry was for girls, not boys. Boys were supposed to like subjects like math, computers, and science. When I wrote poems, the boys at school used to make fun of me. At my new school, things are different.”

Jack may not realize that boys and girls also learn and think differently based on specific biological developments. These differences have an effect on how and when boys and girls learn, so single-sex education is actually better for children.

Take brain development for example, the areas of the brain involved(有关联) in language, feelings, physical coordination (协调), and social relationships develop in a different order and speed in girls and boys. Teenage girls find it easier to answer the question, “How does the story make you feel?” than teenage boys. Research has shown that teenage girls’ brains develop the connections between language and emotions(情感) earlier than boys’ brains. A teenage boy will have more difficulty answering that question because his brain has not fully developed that connection yet. In a single-sex classroom, everyone’s brain is developing at similar speeds, so teachers can teach according to their students’ actual abilities.

Boys and girls also have different hearing abilities. Girls have a sense of hearing which is two to four times better than boys. Women teachers often speak more quietly, so boys may have more difficulty hearing a woman teacher if she is talking in her “normal” voice. The teacher needs to speak louder to get the boys’ attention. In a single-sex school, teachers do not have to keep adjusting the volume of their voice.

Jack might not notice the biological arguments why single-sex education is better, but he realizes that he is learning faster at his new school. As Jack says, “I hated writing and studying English in my old school, but look at me now, I am a published poet! My new school helped me become comfortable with who I really am.”

34. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. Girls usually have fewer chances to talk in class in a mixed school.
- B. Jack was laughed at by other boys because he was not good at poetry.
- C. The part of the brain that understands our emotions grows slower in boys.
- D. Boys’ and girls’ brains will develop at similar speeds if they study together.

35. What will probably happen in a single-sex school?

- A. Teachers will give lessons based on their students’ abilities.
- B. Students will learn and make progress at the same speed.
- C. Students will be expected to learn poetry as a main subject.
- D. Teachers will ask more questions involved in students’ emotions.

36. The words “adjusting the volume” in Paragraph 5 probably mean “_____”.

- A. changing the loudness
- B. increasing the clearness
- C. lowering the level
- D. controlling the speed

37. What is the writer’s main purpose in writing this passage?

- A. To compare how boys and girls think differently.

- B. To show how a boy became a published poet.
- C. To explain why single-sex education is better.
- D. To discuss the problem of writing poems at school.

六、阅读填空 先通读下面的短文，然后根据短文内容，在文章后表格的空格内填入一个最恰当的单词。所填单词必须写在答题卡对应题号的横线上，每个空格只能填一个单词。

（本大题共 5 小题，每小题 1 分，共 5 分）

After-school activities can be a wonderful thing and continue our children's education through the school holidays. However any old activity does not do the right job, every activity should be useful and helpful and of course, joyful. So what matters when we make the decision as to what our youngster is going to take part in?

Above all, you should know what you expect your child to learn from the activity, for example, learning how to play a musical instrument, how to draw or whatever. Any activity should be a challenge to a child. Taking on the challenge and achievement can help a quiet or shy child become more confident.

Safety must be the most important thing that you should consider of any activity. But remember nothing can be made to be 100% safe and still be interesting. You should talk to an instructor and ask questions before deciding this is the course you want your child to be part of. Be careful of the activity itself with too much competition because that can cause problems and kill off enjoyment. Do not forget that this is costing you money so try to be sure that you are getting value for it. Of course there's no doubt that discussing things with your child first is also a good idea.

Parents have different opinions about it though. On the one hand there are those who decide all the things for the child and adults make the running. On the other hand there are those who much prefer to leave the child to choose on his or her own and decide what they want to do during their holiday. Some say that the second method encourages children to better think for themselves and that the first makes them depend more on adults. Only you can decide which one you are and which is the best for you and your child. Remember that you are only young once and childhood will be gone soon forever. All work and no play is not the idea.
